

Aboriginal Legal Services Regina

Aboriginal Legal Services Regina - Cases of Tort law are legal cases which handle civil wrongs. If you have suffered injury or harm as a result of somebody else's intentional wrongdoing or negligence, you can be eligible to receive damages in a tort law case.

The most common types of tort law cases include: negligence causing personal injury and car accidents and medical malpractice. Our company's lawyers will assist you determine which charges must be laid against the accountable parties. Even parties not directly involved with an action that caused you harm may be held accountable for damages. For instance, the delivery truck driver might be held responsible for harming you in an accident, but so can the employer who hired the driver. Numerous parties may, in particular situations, be charged with negligence for the harm which you suffer.

Our tort law lawyers are trained and very experienced in tort law cases. Contact us for an evaluation if you have been badly affected by a civil wrong. We would assist you to understand all of your legal alternatives and guide you through all aspects of the tort law case.