

Criminal Defence Lawyers Regina

Criminal Defence Lawyers Regina - Technology-related businesses turn to our legal firm specializing in technology law for services and advice. The growing field of technology law is essential within a variety of areas, such as e-commerce, computer software and hardware, telecommunications, multimedia, pharmaceuticals, biotechnology, television and film, broadcasting, interactive media, and Web-related industries. Today's technology companies require expert suggestion suited to their unique requirements.

Our practice of technology law, concentrates on mergers, private and public financings, acquisitions and divestitures, licensing agreements and technology transfers. Clients seek out our experts in technology law for advice related to the negotiation of contracts and different transactions. Other services comprise employment audit and intellectual property, the preparation of agreements, like consulting and employment agreements, and agreements related to technology distribution and advertising. Intellectual property protection concerns trade secrets, patents, copyrights, trade-marks and industrial designs. E-commerce issues include infrastructure and website development, maintenance agreements and internet access.

Working in conjunction with Securities, Intellectual Property, Commercial, tax & Trust and Labour and Employment lawyers, our lawyers to give suggestion to technology clients on various corporate matters. Technology law experts work with private venture funds which offer capital to emerging technology businesses.

In situations of infringement of our clients' patents, copyright, trade-marks, or trade secrets, technology litigation lawyers represent the interests of clients before all levels of court. Litigation lawyers act rapidly to solve intellectual property, contractual, financing and employment disputes before they escalate. The early identification of potential matters is a top priority. In order to avoid problematic matters associated to unjust trade practices and misleading and false marketing, clients receive suggestion on the legalities of advertising and the right marketing of products and services. Advice is given on such legal matters as trade-mark registration and use, privacy, packaging and labeling, and comparative advertising.