Insurance Lawyers Regina - You are eligible to sue if an insurance firm violates the terms of a written contract. However, the courts will usually just force the insurance firm to pay the amounts owed in accordance to the contract.

If an insurance company has withheld payments deliberately, you can be eligible for extra-contractual damages. These damages may be awarded if the insurance firm ignores or fabricates evidence in addition to providing partial data of your claim. The damages awarded comprise costs such as interest payments and the loss of RRSPs, and compensation for mental suffering. Punitive and exemplary damages are granted when insurance firms show especially malicious conduct.
