Regina Criminal Lawyers - Today's legal landscape of complex regulatory controls presents unique challenges to companies. Increasingly, individuals and businesses are at risk of facing regulatory or criminal investigations and charges.

Our Criminal and Regulatory Law Practice Team advises business clients on matters associated to criminal, quasi-criminal and regulatory issues. Our lawyers have numerous years of skill helping individuals and business clients to successfully navigate investigations, from the earliest stages through to a trial, negotiated resolution or hearing.

We can help you know all of the complexities of government regulations and how they might pertain to your enterprise since it is necessary for businesses to keep abreast of the ever-changing regulations and rules which govern business and industry. Our lawyers can advise on strategies in order to guarantee compliance or help when a company, its officers or directors become the subject of an investigation or charge. Regulatory offenses can differ from those including unfair competition, taxation, excise and customs, environmental protection, wildlife, and occupational health and safety, to really serious criminal charges. We have the range and breadth of experience to handle all problems related to criminal and regulatory law.

We understand that even the threat of quasi-criminal, criminal or regulatory charges can be harmful to your company. Get in touch with our lawyers for prompt and sound counsel from the onset of an investigation or incident. Our goal is to work diligently to help you prevent the expense and stigma of a protracted investigation. Our lawyers work in the timeliest and discrete method called for by such sensitive matters. If a trial or hearing cannot be avoided, our experienced litigators would aggressively defend your interests.
